Halloween in motion

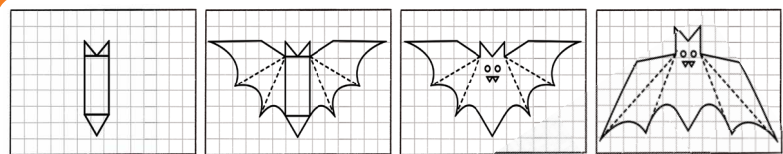

Have you ever tried stop-motion? Now's your chance! Follow the steps to make your drawings move, fly and change faces. Don't forget to ask a grown-up for help!

Yeah!

We also have some tips for you on how to make paper and video stop-motion animation, and you can even make Valentina and me move! Check it all out!

How to draw a bat

Make a wing-flapping bat

Follow the steps below to make the moving bat.

You will need: paper, scissors, glue and colored pencils.

1 Cut out two squares from a piece of paper.

2 Draw the bat on two pieces of paper, one with wings up and the other with the wings down. Color them in!

3 Glue the paper squares back to back on the tip of a pencil.

4 Roll the pencil in your hands and watch the bat flap its wings!

A face-making pumpkin

Use paper cups to give your pumpkin figure different expressions. Flip the cups to see it change faces!

1 Grab two paper cups and turn them upside down.

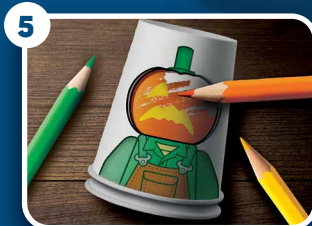

2 Draw a pumpkin figure on one of the cups. Leave the face blank. Cut that area out.

3 Slide the second cup inside the one with the pumpkin figure.

4 Draw a pumpkin figure's face on the second cup, in the space underneath the cutout.

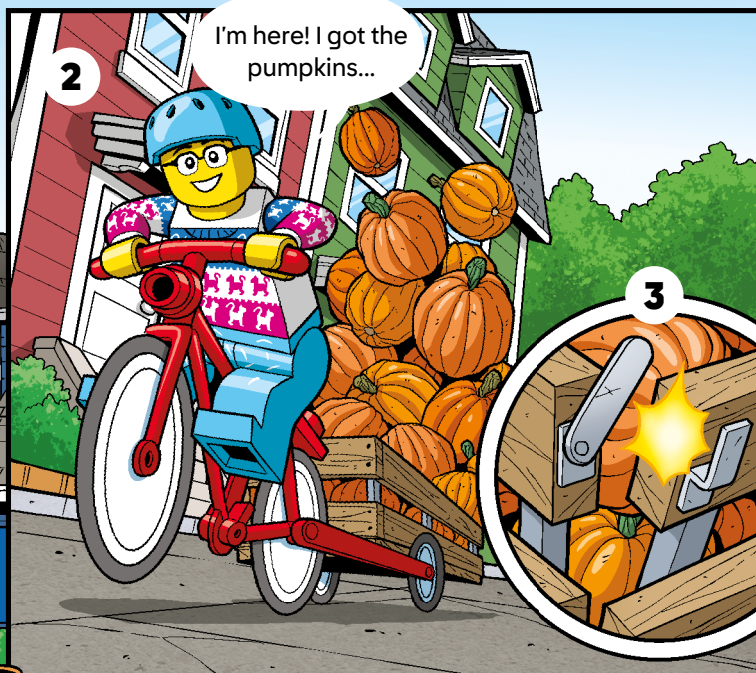

5 Turn the cup slightly and draw another face, with a different expression. Turn the cup again and draw one more fun expression.

Now, each time you turn the cup, the pumpkin figure will make a different face!

Love the way you build

My name is Jennifer Jasmin Kessler, and I am from Germany. I am a photographer and a musician, but I also make LEGO® stop-motion animations, it is so much fun!

I keep my camera steady. I place it on a stable surface, like a phone holder built from LEGO® bricks! I try not to move it while taking the pictures.

What stop-motion animation will you make today with your LEGO bricks?

Using LEGO heads with different face expressions and changing hairstyles helps me to add emotions and action to my story.

I try to be patient, try things out and experiment!

I use differently sized LEGO pieces to create a splash effect.
